

The 'Fashion for Home' Shipwood Dark Shelf is Soaked in History

When old boats wash up on shore as dented and dilapidated, it seems as though they are just destined to turn into rusted relics, but the 'Fashion for Home' Shipwood Dark Shelf gives them new life and a polished look.

The units were all once Chinese riverboats, as you can almost tell from the decorative planks that each have distinguishing divots. The open concept design is constructed purely out of recycled ship substance that lends a rustic look to it that can't quite be manufactured. In between each shelf is a ladder-like slat to kick up the quaint notch on the design that comes complete with a gold plate to mark the origin and age of its materials.

The Fashion for Home Shipwood Dark Shelf can be that one hunk of history in your home that doesn't have to look like an old fashioned eye-sore in order to be authentic.
